case study

THINKING BIG FOR BIG TECH

A premier furniture dealer entrusted us with this massive account for a global tech giant. They knew that with our connections across the continent, we could take on a global account, scale up in a snap, and deliver high-volume support wherever and whenever needed.

PROJECT OBJECTIVES

- Provide drawings and specifications for three new buildings and adapt changes to the existing layout of two additional buildings
- Meet the very particular needs of a tech behemoth

The unique technological specs of this project made it a standout challenge for us. And with the company's ethos in mind, we had to do it better, deliver it faster, and make it fun.

Fortunately, we have working processes for large projects like this one down to a science, and the dealer partner trusts us implicitly. Thanks to our flexible structure and connections, this was a knockout job that helped the client kick start their expansion into Colorado.

"Kimiko provides a consistent, knowledgeable, dedicated resource that can adapt to changing expectations and deliverables. Flexibility while absolutely nailing it is why we chose to outsource with Kimiko Designs for this high-profile client."
